2021 WORKSHOPS

JUNE 2021

Developing & Impacting Effective Teams with Rae Ringel

A team is formed when individuals come together to work toward common goals. The focus of this session is on team theory and practical application, teaching participants strategies that can be used to align teams for improved performance. At the end of this session, participants will be able to identify the characteristics of high-performing teams, describe the stages of team development, define the role of an effective team member and leader, and practice strategies to help improve their team's alignment and performance and their own performance on their team.

JULY 2021

Facilitating Engaging Meetings & Events with Amy Climer

We have all been to boring, irrelevant meetings where you are counting the minutes until you can sprint out of the room. You look around and it seems everyone is as bored as you are. The presenter is sharing detail-rich slides. You wish they had just sent an email. As a professional, your job is to never lead boring, irrelevant meetings. You need to design meetings where people are engaged, focused, leaning forward, and contributing to rich conversations. Meetings are powerful. They can push your work forward with energy or leave it stagnating in place. You must leverage your meetings as effective tools. How? By learning to design and lead engaging meetings. This workshop will show you how. We will explore both in-person and virtual meetings and how to make them engaging and worthwhile.

SEPTEMBER 2021

Confidently Communicating About Equity with Reina DuFore & Veronica Selzler

As emerging leaders, you can play an important role in advancing equity within the education sector. But to confidently and meaningfully integrate racial equity into your work, it is important to have a clear definition of what racial equity means to you and what it looks like at your organization, within education, and in society. In this workshop you will gain a better understanding of what racial equity means, and you will be better prepared to confidently communicate—and effectively advocate—for racially equitable outcomes.

Develop Your Executive Presence with Christine Clapp

Whether you are on the phone, on a Zoom call, in a hybrid meeting, attending a conference, or anywhere else, your ability to speak confidently and persuasively will drive your career forward—just as a lack of confidence will frustratingly hold you back. In this session, Spoken with Authority will give you a set of powerful insights and practical strategies that will rapidly elevate your presence and expand your influence in virtual and in-person situations—whether you are speaking to an internal or external audience and whether you are speaking to one, several, or many.
